

ABSTRACT

[0147] The inventions relate generally to high speed fault tolerant storage systems. More particularly, the inventions relate to fault tolerant storage systems utilizing RAID and/or SCI, combinations thereof, and features usable with one of both of them, or otherwise usable in a data storage or data access environment. Detailed information on various example embodiments of the inventions are provided in the Detailed Description below, and the inventions are defined by the appended claims.